A woman accused of having sexual contact with a Greece Central School District student resigned from her job as a teacher's aide at Greece Olympia High School. Christina M. Jewell-Bellucio, 32, of Greece was charged Tuesday with third-degree rape and third-degree criminal sex act, both felonies, she resigned from her job with the school district the same day, Greece Central School District Spokesperson, Laurel Heiden said in an email. Heiden said, "We were made aware of the alleged misconduct on Monday and began an internal investigation. We turned the investigation over to Greece Police the same day." Jewell-Bellucio was hired as cheerleader coach August 2013, said Heiden and also became a teacher's aide at Greece Olympia High School March 2014. She was then appointed a senior teacher's aide, according to school documents. Olympia is a sixth- to twelfth-grade school. Jewell-Bellucio was named 2014 Class A Coach of the Year during the 2014 Winter Section V Cheerleading Sectionals.

According to court documents, Jewell-Bellucio allegedly had sexual contact with the student at various times at her home and another location during June 2014.

She was arraigned in Greece Town Court and released on bail.
