

School choice debate divisive

Spencerport
Urban-Suburban draws crowd

JUSTIN MURPHY
STAFF WRITER

SPENCERPORT — Two of the first speakers at a meeting Tuesday about potentially adopting the Urban-Suburban program showed the wide divide in opinions among residents.

The first was Umberto Gigliotti, 87, who declared he'd stop paying taxes if Rochester students are bused in through the program.

"(The district) is for people who live in Spencerport and nowhere else," he said. "Anyone who wants to go to school in Spencerport should buy a house in Spencerport."

Rochester students' problem, he

See SCHOOL, Page 12A